Test 3.0 or 4.8 Which?

One of the chief reasons for testing cows not simply once in a while, but at regular intervals, is found in the fact that they are known to vary so greatly and so frequently, that any attempt to judge a cow by one or two isolated tests is bound to be quite unfair to judge any cow on any one isolated test when it might be 3.0 one day and 4.8 another day. Which could you take? A fair and just way is to take samples regularly and test a composite sample once a month. Then there will be credit given where it is really due, not necessarily to the one that is supposed to be a high tester, because she is of fancy name or fancy price, but frequently to some tacitly despised individual who is really the queen of the dairy. It will pay to select those cows that are known, not supposed, to yield milk rich in fat.

Nanton vs. Clareholm

The game was played Saturday afternoon and was won by the home team, the score being 1-0. The game was slow from start to finish and those who worked the hardest were E. Cole, Scotty, Redfern, E. Moffatt, Seefelt, Reynolds, Dud Munroe, Paddy and Baxter, they cleaned the ice between nets. The puck was hidden in the snow nearly all the time but C. Gardner found it once after Redfern swept the snow from around it and took it up the ice and scored. The Nanton goal keeper played the usual good game and starred for Nanton. On account of Nanton only having six players with them the Nanton played six men hockey.

Big Competition Open to all

Honorable Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, has arranged for four dairy competitions to be carried on in the province, beginning April 1st. These competitions will be held at the direct charge and supervision of Mr. S. S. Carlyle who is instructor in the management of dairy herds, under the Dominion grant, the Provincial Department of Agriculture. Those of these competitions will be carried on in connection with the three Schools of Agriculture, with headquarters at Vermilion, Medicine Hat and Carleton Place. These competitions shall be open to grade cows only, and the prizes in connection with them will be five stock. As there are ten prizes to be given in each competition, there should be a large number of entries, and a good deal of interest should be taken in it. Mr. Marshall has decided to put on these contests because of the success that at the end of the competition held, under the Dominion grant in that of agricultural in connection with the above mentioned at Vermilion last year. As a number of girls who have been attending the School of Agriculture, have signified their desire to take part in the competition, there is a special award of being offered to the girl who stands the highest in connection with each competition.

Mr. Carlyle will be assisted in this work by the instructors in animal husbandry and some of the other teachers in the Schools of Agriculture. If dairying is to be a success in Alberta, there is nothing so important to the dairymen as the securing of first class cows, and the only way he can find out whether his cows are profitable or not, is to subject them to the test of the scales and the Babcock test.

The fourth competition will be a competition open to pure bred herds throughout the entire province of Alberta and it is expected that a large number of breeders will enter in this competition, that they will not only show keen rivalry in competing for the prizes with their different herds, but it is expected that some phenomenal records will be made which would help to advertise Alberta as a dairy province.

The regulations governing the competitions will appear in the next issue of the Clareholm Review.

The English church here was the scene of a pretty and impressive ceremony on Thursday February 19th, when Miss Jessie Young, eldest daughter of Mr. J. After a toast from the groomsman and a reply from the groom the happy couple dashed away in a cutter and in a few seconds the wedding bells were no longer heard. They went to Calgary in 10 hours, working with the shill-homesome. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Watt will reside in Clareholm. ## THE LAZY ORIENT.

Lethure and Languor Dominate Life in the Far East.

The Turk in spring will sit on the hillside and smoke a long green for minutes at a time, sometimes for hours. They call it "the long green." When you have a Turkish student who is not a student, you will find him. No part of the lesson sinks into his mind. He speaks when you call on him and tries to answer your questions, but his thoughts are far away.

I have stood leaning against a wall in the lecture hall and yawned and gazed for fifteen minutes at a time at certain shrubs and flowers which were bright with sunshine until my thoughts came to soar away beyond the outlines of space and time. It is as easy to be mystic in the east as it is to be practical in the west. The difference between east and the west, in this, is this: Here you do not like to sit doing there they do not like to get up. Here leisure reigns; there it is a virtue.

Our habit of crowding every minute of our lives with duties and exciting events, is the result of our climate. It is hard to sit still and relax and desire nothing, not even amusement. Such a life, however, is not a happy one. It is not a happy life and is bound to lead to a bad life.

In the east one does not have to do anything in order to be happy. They do not have to plan their day, their games, crowded excursions, in order to enjoy their life. They are happy to sit, to rest, to be idle. They are happy to sit, to rest, to be idle. They are happy to sit, to rest, to be idle.

For this reason I have often thought that the east may in time become our great sanatorium. Just as the people who come to the country learn to work and to hustle, so Anglo-Americans who go to the east learn to repose. A few years there will change restlessness, nervous habits into calm and peace. You come to worry about things. Desire, which is the cause of our unhappiness, is removed. It is not important.

Reader, if you want to know what happiness is, go to the east. It is the land of the East and the West. It is the land of the East and the West. It is the land of the East and the West.

Then He Batted.

At a gathering last night, a newly-arrived lieutenant, visiting for a partner, was introduced to a group of people. He declined, saying he would not sit down. He declined, saying he would not sit down. He declined, saying he would not sit down.

His Nerves.

"By George, but that chap Kirby is independent!" I never better met a more independent man than Kirby. Kirby is independent. Kirby is independent. Kirby is independent.

Practically Mindless.

COURT SAVED THE TIE.

He Turned a High Hat Tragedy into a Work of Art.

An interesting view of Court is to be seen in the gallery of a picture dealer in the Champs Elysees. It takes the form of a wooden frame containing a gray high hat of a style "now forgotten." A "court" expert says that this high hat is the crown of the hat is guaranteed to be a genuine work of art.

One sees in the hat a rapid study of the artist. The artist has utilized the style with the aid of the hat to produce a beautiful work of art. The hat is a work of art. The hat is a work of art. The hat is a work of art.

A cry of despair followed not exactly that which a high authority has pronounced to be a masterpiece of art. The hat is a masterpiece of art. The hat is a masterpiece of art. The hat is a masterpiece of art.

THE TWISTED VINE

A Story of the Orinoco

By CLARISSA MACKIE

It was very quiet in that jungle along the upper reaches of the Orinoco river.

Charles Goodell, orchid hunter for the Philadelphia collector, stood on the high bank of the river and looked longingly up at the cluster of mauve orchids clinging to the top of a rotten tree trunk that overhung the river. It was a lofty tree, and, bowed with its weight, it bent its head, decked with the delicate butterfly blossoms over the silken river that it would swing when it crashed down in the hurricane season.

Goodell's Carib Indians had refused to climb the tree and were now squatting on the ground, looking on with a mixture of curiosity and indifference. The mauve orchids tempted Goodell beyond discretion. He decided to mount the tree and secure them himself, although he knew the risk he ran.

He went to the top of the tree and found the orchids. He was very quiet in that jungle along the upper reaches of the Orinoco river.

heaven. Later they would come back, peering fearfully to gain possession of the specimen cases because their captives would never reach again.

The heavy vine twisted upward to the orchids now fifty feet above the ground. He looked at it and started. There was something about the starting eyes because away from the tree was the monstrous, threatening head of a locust constructor whose great body was twisted around the vine to which it clung.

How his keen eyes had failed to detect the body of the great snake as it coiled up and around the trunk of the giant vine he never knew.

Death stared him in the face. It was the monstrous head of the snake that caught him as he fell, and, falling in that, the deadly water serpent would put him out of existence.

Already the body moved sluggishly, but his fascinated eyes did not leave the hideous head among the orchids. The flat eyes regarded him with cold hatred; the ugly mouth grinned.

He heard the distant howl of his Indians. Evidently they had come to him they could not help him.

His first downward movement would be the signal for the beginning of the chase.

He closed his eyes and prayed. He thought of his mother and of Alice Blaine. He felt the need to pray.

His grip loosened on the twisted vine and he fell. He was falling. He was falling. He was falling.

He was falling. He was falling. He was falling. He was falling. He was falling.

DIAMETER OF THE EARTH.

Point at Which It Is the Greatest and the Least.

What is the greatest diameter of the earth? The form of the earth is that of a flattened sphere, greater in diameter at the equator than at the poles, but this is not the point at which the diameter is the greatest, so that the diameter is not the same at all points at which it is measured.

It might be expected that the diameter would be greatest at the point where the earth is the flattest, and this is the case. The diameter is greatest at the point where the earth is the flattest, and this is the case.

Professor L. H. H. of the University of Chicago has calculated the diameter of the earth at the point where it is the flattest, and this is the case.

This diameter is 7,923.3 miles. As Chimbazon is almost on the equator, the diameter is the same as the diameter of the earth at the point where it is the flattest, and this is the case.

The earth's surface which is the most distant from the center, there being a difference of about 17 miles between the equator and the poles, is the point at which the diameter is the greatest, and this is the case.

It might be thought that the diameter would be greatest at the point where the earth is the flattest, and this is the case.

A STORY OF A FRONT TOOTH.

A Small Fortune That Was Restored to Its Rightful Owners.

One winter morning a little boy of ten or twelve years ran into the office of the United Charities in New York city crying bitterly. Between his sobbing teeth he said: "Uncle has stolen my front tooth; please get it back for me."

His mother, then lying dead at home, was at the office. In her youth she had had a large diamond inserted in her front tooth, and the advertisement had proved profitable.

As the years passed misfortune overtook her; she was deserted by her husband, the family ruin was soon empty and the children hungry. Her tooth was referred to with the diamond, always telling the children that after her death the money it brought would support them for some time.

When the little mother became ill with tuberculosis the children hushed her fears about their future with rueful smiles of the value of the jewel. But before the funeral a wicked uncle came in the night and pulled out the tooth.

An officer was sent at once to the United Charities for a restoration. The tooth was not made at once. The restoration was successful, the tooth restored, the diamond taken out, and the proceeds used for the children. Continued from Survey.
